management

Effective managers seem to get the most value out of their people. Learn in this executive three day people management workshop how they do it.

Managing people

- > Tailor your management styles to fit your people.
- > Build trust and output by soliciting input.
- > Motivate individuals and teams with more responsibility, not more money.

EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP FOUNDATION

Why this programme ...

YOU ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE BUSINESS RESULTS OF YOUR TEAM

You are struggling with a deadline or you have to take a crucial decision that impacts your company as well as your career... The last thing you need is "difficult" people to take into account. When time becomes money and your management requires powerful measures, you expect your team to cooperate: quickly and rationally. You do not need displeased, complaining co-workers. You don't want unmotivated employees who put their job and responsibilities on a side-track. You expect your people to be proactive at all times, even though the new-born child of your project engineer has been crying all night ... Reality, however, is often different! And as a manager you have to be able to deal with this.

COMMUNICATE CLEAR GOALS AND EXPECTATIONS, ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Working with people is coaching and motivating them. Individually as well as in a team. However, managers keep on underestimating their personal impact on the effectivity of their teams. For as a manager you have the power and the responsibility. The power to take decisions, the responsibility to achieve results. And therefore you need real skills.

INSPIRE AND MOTIVATE YOURSELF, YOUR INDIVIDUAL TEAM MEMBERS, YOUR TEAM AND YOUR MANAGEMENT

Before you can take a step towards coaching people, you have to acquire insight into your personal leadership style. Only then you can grow to being a valuable people manager. That is why Patrick will on the first day especially dwell on who you are as a manager and how you can optimize your personal leadership style.

On the second day you will learn how to coach and guide individual employees. The entire performance management cycle will be dealt with. The emphasis in this case lies on how you can distillate every individual's potential fully.

Your role as a team manager will be addressed on the third day. Individual employees function within a team. As a manager it is your assignment to integrate each individual employee within a strong, motivated and a result-oriented team. This is not easy, but achievable. How to do this, will be explained on the third day.

Your expert trainer

Patrick Lybaert graduated at the University of Ghent as an organizational psychologist. He started his career in the banking sector, as a manager in the former BBL and later as a Programme Director in the German training centre of a consortium of European larger banks. After this he changed to the Management Centre Europe, where he was Programme Director for the General Management and Leadership programmes for 5 years. Afterwards he became Chief Learning Officer in Pliva (a worldwide operating pharma organization), and he was also responsible for the set-up of the Pliva's Corporate University.

Nowadays Patrick is active as a fulltime teacher in difficult and integrated leadership programmes, this already more than 10 years. He, for example, teaches in the Executive Education & Development Programmes at the Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University. This concerns made-to-measure programmes as well as MBA-programmes. Patrick has, moreover, founded the Executive Leadership Foundation (ELF), a unique training organisation that aims at offering international organisations leadership-learning solutions.

As a trainer he is engaged to help the participants to develop their potentials. In this way he supports you in creating a meaningful workplace, where everybody will be stimulated in doing his/her utmost. He is a dynamic and motivating trainer. His favourite quote is: 'You can't change people, you can only help them to become more of themselves'. Patrick has already coached and trained more than 15.000 managers.

Don't miss it ... you will be a better people manager after this workshop, that's for sure ...

Anno 2024 different management skills are required. A sputtering economy, company reorganisations, decreasing company results, limited space for negotiations... require vigorous leadership. Working with people has never been as complex and challenging as nowadays. This intensive workshop will augment your personal insight, practice your essential skills and help you setting up a motivated team. In this way you learn to work with people and orient on results.
